IN THE WORLD OF SENIOR HIGH

DEDICATION

To Mr. Robert Lody Glenn

A flashing grin, a warm hello, a sympathetic ear, an understanding heart - these typify Mr. Glenn. In every encounter and underlying every relationship his earnest effort is felt by students and faculty alike. To each one of us he shows the same genuine patience and interest, "creating a warm, friendly, happy atmosphere" throughout our school. We respond and are grateful. Therefore, in deep appreciation for his personal guidance, his earnest direction, and his sincere friendship, we, the students of GHS, devotedly dedicate this 1958 IV'hirligig to our Assistant Principal Robert Lody Glenn.

FOREWORD

Looking down on the network of buildings that form Greensboro High School, we see a democratic nation on a scale model. All phases of life from politics to Olympics are represented here. V'ictory has the same sweet taste for the student government president as for the one directing from the White House. The swish of organza has the same musical sound reflected from the gym floor at prom time as it does from the ballroom of the Waldorf. "Ninety" on a math test brings that same sense of accomplishment to the struggling math student as explaining Einstein's theory dues to the $\$ 6.1,000$ champion. This edition of $W^{\prime}$ hirligig presents to you news on the local scene - headlines from the student's world.

Senior High was established primarily for imparting knowledge and inereasing wisdom, and to achieve these goals, many students give their utmost in thought and eoncentration. There are those who strive eonstantly to beeome informed, aware, and wise.

But within these walls there is also something more - the inspiration and opportunity to serve others. It is an intangible thing, permeating the atmospliere. enconraging many to strain eagerly to be more useful, to lead rieher lives. And whether they are surpassing examples set by others in the past or conceiving new ways to be of service in the future, they are constantly, eagerly - striving for success.

STRIVING FOR SUCCESS

We read, speak, write ... and grow more articulate

The largest English faculty in GHS history kept pupils constantly aware of the importance of correct punctuation, sentence structure, and spelling. Sophomores discovered the wonderful world of Silas Marner and were given their first taste of Shakespeare. Their menu included "The Idylls of the King," which inspired several young men to try their hand at chivalry. In studying American literature, juniors became friends of Emerson, Cooper and Hawthorne. Will any junior ever forget Whitman's beautiful, "I believe at leaf of grass is no less than the journeywork of the stars . . ."? College loomed ahead for seniors, and there was a mad rush to learn absolutely everything in a too short nine months! Autobiographies brought all kinds of hidden facts to light as Mom and Dad were kept up to all hours expounding on the brilliant past of their offspring.

For those ardent few who had become enamored of his plays, a course in Shakespeare was offered; or if English themes did not take enough time, one could participate in the creative writing class. After sweating out a perfect paragraph, the writer presented his work to the class, which proceeded to dissect it with constructive criticism. Writing problems were alleviated in this manner. Many students felt they drew closer to a college level through these two classes.

Mastering English is an art that is essential in the business world. In Business English industrious students concentrated on perfecting their knowledge of spelling, punctuation, and vocabulary.

The library at times resembled Grand Central Station. Filled to capacity all during the day, it was a haven for term paper researchers, book report worms, and even magazine browsers.

Bible classes studied the Old Testament history of the Jewish people and the life of Christ. With projects students shared learning and pursued particular interests.

As the world gets smaller, students realize the need for speaking more than one language. Since France is so romantic and exciting, French was a popular language course. Post cards. letters from pen pals, magazines, and films facilitated learning and added spirit to classes.

The Junior Classical League, enjoying its greatest membership this year, reflected the increase in size of the Latin Department. The imspiring rise of interest in Chassical culture has promoted a program of greater scope and appeal than students have formerly had. Latin may have killed the Romans but through the Junior Ctassial League Latin students met their common "foe." sub jugated it, and eren learned how it could serve them. They increased their knowledge of the people who spoke Latin and of the contributions of the Roman civilization to the new world

New chapter of Spanish honor society is formed

There are twenty students here at Senior who intend to know what's going on at the next bullfight. What's more, if they have an opportunity to visit Spain or the Latin American countries, they want to be able to find their way around and to know enough about the culture of these countrics to be able to appreciate them.

These students are the members of the newly organized Pedro Antonio de Alarcon Chapter of the Spanish National Honor Society. The society encourages scholarship in the study of Spanish and promotes interest in Spanish culture. Any student who maintained an honor average in the study of Spanish for at least two semesters may join. Whether or not the members will have an opportunity to see a bullfight or to go to Spain, at least they enjoy learning fascinating facts about a live language and lively people.

History for many has a new twist this year

Ten o'clock - time to tune in the dial for Myrtle Brock's world history class. Through a new development in the history curriculum at GHS, classes in American and world history were piped in daily from UNC. Privileged students had three main avenues of learning - their text, the television set, and classroom teachers. The one hundred students per class had the honor of being among the first in the South to be taught by TV. About 3,300 pupils participated in the program in the Tri-State area. Students watched television for the first thirty minutes, then heard supplementary material and discussion in each classroom.

Along with this dramatic revolution, history students were continuously concerned with the absorbing articles and topics from the American Obsenver. Also, there were still many classes that, without the aid of television, studied the various aspects of American and world history with the changes in civilization from prehistoric to modern times and the struggles of man for his cherished rights.

Related fields were not neglected either, for courses were offered in economics, government, and geography for the interested student.

Plenty of brainwork is needed for higher math

Every Thursday a profusion of clean paper, sharpencel pencils, and comprasses became cools of frenzied students as math tests were given. Knowing that a mastery of math is often the basis for achievement in today's technical world, many students pursued all math courses offered at GHS. Others, particularly girls who had successfully endured the renowned horrors of Algebra 4, continued in math only because the "ratio" (of boys to girls, of course!) was most favorable. Oddly enough, benefits of this ratio were never seen on test paper

General math, business arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, solid geometry, and college algebra were high school building blocks. Taken separately or in various combinations, they provided each student with the math which would be most useful to him after high school - enabling him to solve difficult everyday problems of a specialized nature, helping him develop his reasoning ability to its fullest extent.

Science students advance from frogs to rockets

Russian-launched satellite "Sputnik" is first to conquer outer space.

SOPHOMORE biologists get graphic demonstration in study of human anatomy.

The science department welcomed sophomores with a smell of formaldehyde as they began the year dissecting frogs. Biology was practically the only outdoor course at Senior. Students went out in the fall to stroll across the campus gathering specimens of leaves or insects for notebooks and exhibits. After biology, science enthusiasts could take chemistry or physics. Chemistry students could easily be detected by their serious attitudes and acid burns. The lab was the scene of constant activity, as students rushed to complete experiments or boned up for that next "impossible" test. Physics was one step farther on the science ladder. "Jabbo" drilled his students in everything from a slide rule to Newton's law of accelerated motion. At the impressive Science Fair, held in March in the boys' gym, student projects amazed adults as well as fellow students. On March 4, the Science Day assembly gave the student body a peek into the fascinating world of science. There were some students who found time to accomplish even more. No less than a rocket was launched on GHS' tennis courts. The enthusiasm displayed by science students was a clear indication that GHS' students realize the big role of science in the world of tomorrow.

Junior Engineers enlighten public by TV series

In a year when scientific articles appeared on the front page of every newspaper, the Junior Engineers Club advanced its activities into a new medium also. The new project was a bi-weekly program over WUNC-TV. With necessary adaptations the programs were the same as those presented by members at club meetings.

The club, which has a two-fold purpose stimulating interest in and learning more about science - continued its spring projects of helping sponsor Science Day and the Science Fair.

Although not necessatily timited to those interested in engineering, the club changed its name from the Science Club to Junior Engineers last year. The N. C. Society of Engineers and the Cireensboro Engineers Club furnished funds for equipment, basic literature, and some scientific periodicals to be purchased. More than this financial assistance, the club members appreciated being recognized and encouraged by the adult organization.

In D.O. Trades students balance jobs and study

Twenty-seven ambitious students composed Mr. Racster's D.O. Trades classes this year. These students departed at noon every day to their various posts as nurses' aids, dental assistants, machinists, etc. Their one hour each day in D.O. class gave them much valuable information to help them make the ir jobs a success. One of the first topics studied this year was budgeting, which taught them how to handle and use wisely their hard-earned money. Each lesson was planned to run parallel to the requirements of their respective jobs. In this way it was a very beneficial course for each student.

Each month the students looked forward to the D.O. party, when all work was forgotten temporarily as they shared an evening of fun. Sometimes they went skating, sometimes roasted weiners over a warm fire.

March was a month of excitement and mach preparation, for this was the month of the annual State Vocational and Industrial Clubs Convention, and also the Bosses' Banquet. The VIC convention, held in Durham, climaxed the year's work. After discussing the necessary business. the fingers of the embryo typist finally began to move in familiar territory.

Shorthand and bookkeeping were also important steps in student preparation for filling responsible positions in tomorrow's business world. And learning to use the numerous types of machines in Clerical Practice gave many students very practical experience for future efficiency.

Learning to drive is always fun to a teen-ager so the driver training classes were always full. Coming to school at 8:00 each morning for six weeks for the study of traffic and safety rules was something of a nuisance, but the driving experience later in the day was fun. And when the young driver clutched that coveted license, the ordeal seemed well worth every effort.

The constant whir of machinery never drowned out the interest of the boys taking shop. With an eye for beauty and quality in furniture, those in woodshop worked diligently to produce some really artistic pieces of carpentry work.

The machine shop joined forces with science students this year in constructing some superdifficult projects. This cooperative venture was invaluable to the science students who profited through the skill of the boys in the machine shop. It also gave the amateur machinists an opportunity to share their skill with another department.

The high school printing shop is an integral part of GHS. Without this haven, campaign cards, schedule cards. W"hirligig supplies, and the other printed material would probably be nonexistent. This year the printing shop produced some products worthy of any professional. Whaie the boys leamed a vital trade, they served their school and also enjoyed being useful.

Home economics courses train for later life

MINSETER TALKS to family life clase about marriage and religion.

Healthy, happy homes can be built upon an imaginative knowledge of homemaking, family relationships, and child development. The two-year-old home economics building is headquarters for very useful courses offered in these subjects. They help boys and girls of GHS grow into mature adults who can meet the responsibilities of managing well-balanced homes and raising happy children.

This year's homemaking classes acquired new skills in cooking, sewing, and home management - these girls know the way to a man's heart! Speakers, panel discussions, and projects made Family Life an interesting as well as practical course. Child Development students carefully observed the nursery school children and often entertained them.

Artists, draftsmen create impressions on paper

At nearly every period students who had a talent for drawing or merely an appreciation for line, form, and color, or those who hoped to become skilled in mechanical drawing found their way to art or drafting classes. In art classes they drew still life compositions or sketched portraits of any model they could persuade to pose. They enameled copper jewelry, molded clay into many forms, learned to do beautifully balanced lettering. In drafting they drew letters too, less creatively and more simply, but equally beautiful ones. There, too, their complicated detail drawings helped them to grow more orderly in their thinking as their drawings grew more intricate, their work neater and more accurate.

Playmasters gain experience, delight audiences

Talented students with a keen desire to know the stage and its fascination were the members of Playmasters. They not only produced plays: they also studied all aspects of production from designing attractive sets to the art of applying make-up effectively. Make-up intrgued boys as well as girls, and each tried his hand and imagination in creating a realistic or fantastic make-up for some chassmate.

After reading many plays during the fall, "The Whole Truth." a delightful comecty, was chosen. Deanna Daktor portrayed Mrs. Martin, an insistent mother who demanded the complete truth on every uccasion. Her harassed hushand and teen-age children, played by George Murphy, Sandra Sharpe and Larry Harris, kept pleading the case of "the little white lie" without success. Lee Pickard, a bachelor "girl" of uncertain age and cosmopolitan interests; Tony Martinez, a shrewd financier; and John Stanton, a minister, helped to add humor. Hilarious situations ensued when an old and wealthy aunt, portrayed by Deanna Wagoner, unexpectedly arrived on the scene. Sandra Holderness and Ken R. Edwards played the parts of a girl and boy friend of the young Martins; while Phyllis Hodges and Joe Matherly played a maid and butler. They too helped make the play highly entertaining.

With Lee Pickard as president, Playmasters planned many interesting projects connected with their interests. All during the year many members participated in various speaking contests, which added experience to their developing skill as performers.

High Life staff seeks to keep GHS enlightened

If you had dropped by Room 10 some Tuesday night around 8 p. m., you would no doubt have found High Lifers just putting the finishing touches on Friday's issue of the paper. There were co-editors Betty Rose and Frances McCormick laboring over pages one and two. Would it fit or wouldn't it? . . Oh, well, they wanted to tear it up and start over anyway. Add Penfield surveyed the already made-up pages, then the extra copy lying around, and congratulated himself for making so many news assignments. Other staffers milled around, reading proofs and writing heads, while others hunted frantically for a misplaced caption or bit of copy.

What you saw next was the final stage before publication, however. A large part of the previous week and week-end had been devoted to High Life tasks. Add assigned these stories on Monday - then the fun began. Tracking down faculty members and students for facts was sometimes trying. Ideas for features, editorials, and cartoons just wouldn't come. Typewriter ribbons inked out and stories fell through. When it seemed that nothing more could happen, picturetaking came. Failure to turn the film, a bum flashbulb, and poorly focused shots . . . all this naturally called for retakes. Trips to the printer, camera center, engraver follow - gas, gas, and more gas!

Friday finally came around - another night for staffers to bid Room 10 adieu around $8 \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{m}$.

But instead of going home to a warm, homecooked meal, the crew sat around reading copy, writing heads, cropping pictures, writing stories or doing any one of a number of other chores. All the while they munched cookies, nabs or apples, or maybe, if they were lucky, sipped soup from a thermos. Does it sound like the life of a drudge? Hardly - it's really great fun!

Work of the previous week hadn't been concentrated entirely on the literary part, though, a great deal had to do with finance. Rhoda Miller and the business arssistants had tracked down ads and tried to keep accurate account of business transactions.

Whirligig permanently records this year at GHS

Organized confusion abounds in the $\mathrm{IF}^{\prime \prime}$ birligig room. Shelves crammed full of annuals, piles of papers, typewriters being furiously hammered, frantic people racing around with purposeful expressions but no destination - amid this scene the 1958 IV'birligig was created. An "outsider" has been known to stand at the door unnoticed for minutes. He could soon realize that everything was centered around a battered gray book, the "dummy," which seemed to be the answer to everyone's problems (or perhaps the cause of them all!)

The dummy was made up last spring, when the theme of this year's book was worked out by the new staff. Choosing this year's basic idea - how Senior High is a world in miniature - began the activities that continued until Mr. Fleming arrived from Charlutte that momentous day in February to carry the book off to press.

In the fall after individual pictures were taken, Miss Powell and editor Sue Levine directed and begged. There was so much to be done - portraits and organization pictures to be taken, copy and captions to be written, phoiographs to be mounted and sent to the engravers, ads and sponsorships to be sold. Janice and Mr. Miller traveled all over town for the club pictures. Angelyn and Janet handed out the inevitable writing assignments, Pat cropped pictures and revised layouts, Nancy and Peggy counted money and urged their salesmen to greater effort. Such was the hectic life in the $\mathbb{W}^{\prime}$ birligig room, and the pace only picked up speed and urgency as February approached with its dreaded monster "Deadline."

High spot in the fall was the day when the eighth straight "All-American" award announcement came. It was a happy moment, and marked the beginning of an even greater effort to repeat the achievement once more, if possible, in 1958.

Senior's literary honor society initiated its five new members at a dimner in the patio of an uptown restaurant. The initiation itself composed a riotous half kour of antics, including the messy: recovery of a dime from a bowl of flour. As "unliterary" as this may sound, it was the beginning of a year of hard work and skillful writing and editing. The main project for Quill and Scroll was the publication of "Homespun," a magazine filled with literary sketches by talented students at GHS. Each member of the club hounded English teachers for weeks for samples of their students' best writings. The finished magazine, which also included several original drawings, was received enthusiastically when it went on sale in April.

A supper at the home of their adviser, Mrs. John W. Medearis, began the year for Euterpe Symphonia members. At following meetings these junior and senior musicians performed for one another. In this way everyone gained a wider knowledge of different types of music. In April seniors played for the sponsoring Senior Euterpe Symphonia Club, their parents, and music teachers.

Again this year the Euterpe Symphonia presented several records to the GHS library. They made contributions for music scholarships given by the National Federation of Music Clubs, of which they are a member. Some participated in a music contest sponsored by the state branch of this organization.

His truth is marching on." Strains from the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and from our beloved "Alma Mater" can never be forgotten by students or faculty, nor by the many civic organizations for whom the choir sang. Their varied repertoire, performed to perfection, came from strenuous practice every day. "There'll be a drowning party tonight!' was Miss Tuttle's dire threat to the bass who was off-key or the soprano who had cheered too much at the ball game. If this didn't bring quick results, Miss Meredith spent hours working with individual voices.

There were many rewards. The Kiwanis Club treated choir members to a steak dinner. Many invitations to sing were climaxed by stirring performances in the orchestra-choir show and in the District Contest. Thirty-four lucky choir members were chosen to sing in April at the State Festival at Woman's College. Those attending were happy to see friends from last summer's Choral Camp, where many from GHS had enjoyed a week of songs directed by dynamic Dr. Lara Hoggard.

The best memories are those shared by all members of the choir - the strenuous practicing, the performance that sounded so right that even Miss Tuttle bragged, and the singing together for the last time at graduation.

Smaller groups played at the senior production of Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and for Torchlight ceremonies. It was at the fall induction that president Julia Adams and vicepresident Jan Phillips, playing in a quartet during the ceremony, were themselves tapped into the honor society.

Away from school the orchestra performed before the Rotary Club and at Greensboro College, where they received such a royal welcome in the form of ardent appreciation and delicious lunch. Smaller ensembles were invited to play at the United Fund luncheons, before Euterpe Symphonia, and at the Senior Tea during Commencement week.

Senior High Band wins

Senior High's band and a trip to Canada became practically synonymous this year. Almost as exciting as the day of departure in April was the day of the first announcement. The school board had given its approval, and for the first time a North Carolina high school band would perform before a foreign band masters' association. With two excuses - the oncoming trip and Christmas holidays - a party of celebration was in order. After presenting their director, Mr. Hazelman, with a sporty sweater, band members played jitterbug music, danced, and stuffed themselves with refreshments.

To raise money, concerts were presented and Barbershop Quartet tickets were sold. Getting to play in Canada and see Niagara Falls made the hard work of practicing and selling well worth while. The practice rooms were filled each period of the day, as players spent their study periods striving for musical perfection.

Twice a week the front hall of the music building harbored bouncy musical sounds. Otis Brown and Ted Thompson, two energetic men from Ballard music store, directed this new organization - a GHS dance band. Its over twenty members were enthusiastically received by the student body as they "rocked" the auditorium at assembly.

The marching band escorted the Whirlie football team onto the field at each home game and presented colorful halftime shows. They played in a Darlington, South Carolina, Labor Day parade, then witnessed the races and hunted shady spots on that scorching day.

Majorettes practiced faithfully many afternoons in the dusty field beside lines of band members as other free students passed them on the way to the parking lot. ## Impressive Torchlight tapping fills assembly

NEI LY TAPPED Torchlight members share ecstacy with others.

Torchlight is more than solemn tapping ceremonies in the fall and spring. It is an organization of students who are recognized for their achievements and who must continue to strive to improve themselves and their school. Its members were sometimes guilty of sneaking into the conference room of the library late to meetings; but once there, they went to work. They eagerly inspected and discussed many sketches before the long-awaited creation of a new stage background for tapping became a reality. The biggest production, the traditional spring Talent Show, entertained the student body; while profits were used to finance a scholarship for a senior nonmember of the organization.

To celebrate the end of exams a covered-dish supper was held at Sandra Holderness' home. The new members were "asked" to perform for the enjoyment of others; talent displayed was not as professional but no less humorous than that at the bigger, more public Show. "Smiling Liberace and George" won the prize - a beautiful pimiento-chocolate-olive sandwich. Proudly wearing their new pins, Torchlighters ended a fun-filled evening.

At the spring ceremony juniors as well as seniors were tapped, and the new stand was used for the first time. Preparation for the assembly programs was headed by the president Jean Medearis and the adviser of Torchlight. Mrs. Madlin.

The student council was working behind the scenes even as early as August as they tackled the responsibilities of sophomore orientation and elections. Then the football season came into full swing, and the eagerly awaited Homecoming program was organized. This year's queen Peggy Sink was escorted by Roy Michaux, and Lynn McGregor, council sponsor, was escorted by Jey Deifell.

When the ordeal of exams was finally over, the Midwinter's dance set the perfect theme for winter relaxation. Dancing to the theme "Stairway to the Stars" in the beautifully decorated gym was an evening many couples will not forget.

Instead of undertaking Careers Day this year, the council sponsored an Honor Code Day. In presenting this they gave the whole student body an insight into the true meaning of their honor code. There was a main speaker in assembly for the entire student body and then individual homeroom discussions ensued.

Special days present wealth of information

-CIENCE F IIR give pullic a hance to vew ingeniou-- haltom projecto.

Once a year, GHS offers to Juniors and Seniors a chance to take a glimpse into their very near future. This is known as College Day - when candles of ambition are lit. In October Senior acted as host to representatives from different colleges in and around the state. The armed forces also were represented. Here future lawyers, doctors, engineers, and teachers, among others, inquired into the necessary requirements for entrance into their prospective college.

The science enthusiasts of GHS took time out from experimenting with rockets to enter the annual Science Fair. Biology, chemistry, and physics students entered into projects energetically and showed amazing ingenuity in creating everything from perfumes to atomic missiles. The gym saw a steady stream of interested students and adults coming to see the display of scientific talent. Senior's special days put a little spice into the daily routine of class work !

Traffic Squad helps maintain order around GHS

As you pick up the daily newspaper, more than likely you find something about the activities of some branch of the FBI or a city's police force. As essential as the FBI is to the national defense system so the traffic squad is to the equilibrium of GHS.

Although you may have heard little about it, Senior's police force was constantly on the job directing traffic in the halls, steering students correctly through "in" and "out" doors, and "up" and "down" stairs, and keeping the halls free from a general state of confusion. They were on duty not only between class periods but also before school, when upstairs halls were kept taboo to) students.

Headed by Roger English and counselor Mr. Darnell, and with the cooperation of the student body, the traffic squad did an especially good joh this year in keeping parked cars off Westover Terrace and surrounding streets.

year, all of them members of the High School Library Association. For the first time this year a number of sophomores were able to keep up their class work well enough to find time to join the library staff. With the experience some of them had had in junior high school libraries, they were a real help. Perhaps they realized the unusual opportunities a library assistant has to meet new and interesting people and to acquire valuable knowledge for the years ahead.

Once a month the group gathered with Miss Herring, their adviser, for a staff meeting. The council sent delegates to both the district and state conventions. Bob Boyd and Pat Adams were elected treasurer and reporter respectively of the Northwestern District.

Wheel Club drivers get 1,275 to school each day

Every morning 1,275 boys and girls rushed around their homes with one ear tuned alertly for the sound of an approaching school bus. Then they rin to the already crowded vehicle, to join friends for a bumpy ride to school. Seventeen buses full of chattering riders traveled a total of 410 miles each day during the school year. They went to elementary sclools as well as to Senior High.

The seventeen drivers and eighteen substitutes met every morning in a home room, presided over by their adviser Mr. R. L. Glenn. They made careful reports and accepted an aldult responsibility als part of North Carolina's almost unique student bus driver organization. Four evenings a year they gathered as the Wheel Club for a dinner meeting.

FTA Club is most popular organization at GHS

A really big project for FTA Club members this year was an all-out effort to assist teachers. Some members helped at Senior High by devoting some of their study periods, while others dashed over to Brooks School to ease the schedules of busy teachers there. There the girls enjoyed playing games with the youngsters and taking them to the lunchroom.

During National Education Week, committees decorated the faculty lounges, made "an apple for teacher" verse cards, and prepared sacks of goodies wrapped in red and black ribbon (national FTA colors) to express their appreciation. Mr. Ben L. Smith, Superintendent of Greensboro Schools, came to Senior that morning to take part in the activities and receive his own "favor" from the club president.

Sheila Sapero was nominated by the FTA group for state vice-president; and, with loyal support at the state convention in Durham, she was victorious.

President Janct Coble led the group through an interesting and informative year. Serving in a WFMIY-TV panel discussion, she discussed teaching, and afterward attended a program and dinner at the Plantation sponsored by Piedmont Industries.

Volunteer work groups

Volunteer groups often worked behind the scenes, but GHS cannot forget those helpful students who donated their study periods, thought and energy in contributing to Senior's daily success.

Office assistants were the "right-hand men" for their supervisors Mrs. Blackburn, Mrs. Coltrane, and Miss Moore as they ran errands, helped with the records, took care of tardies, and called absent students to check on reasons for their absence.

The school store, headed by Mr. Johnson, helped Senior and many other schools in Greensboro. Business flourished until homeroom period each morning, as innumerable pencils, notebook paper, and special booklets were purchased. In the afternoon school store assistants sorted new supplies and straightened up after the morning rush. They aided other schools by filling orders and typing their invoices. Profits from the store paid the tax on each of the yearbooks sold in the fall and provided other helpful items all during: the year.

Stage crew members came into the limelight this year with new jackets. Their backstage work kept productions at Senior running smoothly as they spent many days and nights before and after each performance arranging lights, scenery, props, and cleaning up. Their know-how with the lights and amplifying equipment helped make each assembly program go well.

donate study periods to serving Senior High

Book room staff members counted tall, endless stacks of books, making sure that each teacher got the correct number she had ordered. This involved not only counting, but checking, taking care of torn books, and stamping each book with numbers. Mr. Glenn kept the records in order and up-to-date.

Cafeteria workers, who were supervised by Mrs. Albright, saw to it that the tables were cleared and trays emptied at each lunch period. Their services, like those of all GHS volunteer workers, enabled everyone's day to run more smoothly and pleasantly.

Junior Civitans publish helpful GHS Handbook

Personal service is the mafor goal of many individuals and organizations all oret our country.

Three years ago the Junior Civitan Club was begun at GHS, and since that time they have established several annual projects. One of these is the publication of the Junior Civitan Handbook, which they distribute every spring to educate the rising sophomores to every phase of Senior High life. To keep the student body on the ball, the Civitan hand out "pocket bulletin boards." which present the schedules for the Whirlies, assemblies and other school events. In the main hall is ar real eye-catcher - their bulletin board. This carries the latest in Whirlie sport activities for the month.

Partial credit for the wonderful spirit at Senior High this year belongs to these boys. One of the functions of their club is to boost sports and spirit at Senior. Every year their booster posters decorate the halls during football seatson. A project welcomed enthusiastically this year was the sell ing of season passes for home basketball games and wrestling matches.

Squeezing through the narrow runway in the parking lot was becoming an impossibility until the Junior Civitans came to the rescue. They very deverly solved the situation by supplying bright yellow posts to mark the entrance to the parking area. With everyone pitching in, they cemented the markers at spaced distances at the entrance. Now student drivers have an attractive guide for entering and leaving the area.

The boys devised many practical ways of covering their expenses. To help support the handbook they sold advertising space in its pages. The sale of Whirlie booster buttons provided money while it raised school spirit. Citizens willingly bought fruit cakes at Christmas because they knew the Junior Civitans, with their support, were making Greensboro a better community in which to live.

Key Club projects cheer and help many groups

Since the first Key Club was formed thirty-three years ago in Sacramento, California, over a quarter of a million high school boys have elected to join in serving their communities unselfishly. Ten years ago a chapter of the Key Club was organized at Senior High and, year after year, has completed many projects in the service of their school and community.

Their efforts to serve begin as school opens This year sophomores received a grand introduction to the works of the club when they were presented with the words to our "Alma Mater." And getting acquainted was made easier with the club name tags that adorned everyone's lapel the first few days of school. The football team got Key Club protection with rubber teeth guards provided by the club. Other students were given football brochures so they would recognize their classmates so disguised. Student fans were even ushered to their respective seats by club members. The bonfire Key Clubbers sponsored was a real highlight of the sports year. High school students were easy to recognize this year as they rode through town sporting their Key Club "Go Whirlies" license plates.

On the cultural level, the boys helped promote the Greensboro Symphony Orchestra by distributing posters for their fall concert. At Christmas, shut-ins were cheered immeasurably with the caroling the boys did. Giving cheer to their high school friends as well, the Key Club sent a mammoth telegram to the basketball team in Asheville - which, incidentally, won! Los Condes, organized by four seniors in 1955, is sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. With Mr. Jack Coble acting as adviser, the boys accomplished outstanding projects this year. With a membership comprised of selected students "having good character, abundant school spirit. and a desire to participate in the principles of the club," Los Condes were bound to be successful in their activities of contributing megaphones to cheerleaders and "bench warmers" to the basketball team, and sponsoring an "Athlete of the Week" bulletin board.

The club helped the community by collecting for the United Fund and the Polio drive.

As a final goal they gave a scholarship to a worthy senior at the commencement exercises.

The stands of the stadium were a colorful confusion of blues and whites during football season as the Junior Civinettes distributed shakers to help cheer the team on.

The Junior Civinettes joined the Junior Civitans in selling fruit cakes this winter. Thanksgiving and Christmas found the girls working industriously. ## Les Freres

Les Freres $\mathrm{Hi}-\mathrm{Y}$, the oldest $\mathrm{Hi}-\mathrm{Y}^{Y}$ club at GHS , is composed of thirty outstanding boys who had a hectic schedule to maintain this year. During any spare moments between their Monday night meetings, the club sold shoe polish. This selling project was for a worthwhile reason. The boys were giving all of their profit to the World Service organization, which contributes to the needy all over the world. Les Freres lend a helping hand through this service in building a new YIWCA in Seoul, Korea.

The Hi.Y motto, "To create, maintain, and extend sound principles of good character throughout the home, school, and community," was fulfilled this year with many civic projects. The club also relaxed and enjoyed a hayride last fall.

Philomathions

Phitomathions, begun two years ago when all of its members were sophomores, grew up this year. Last fall the first lower classmen were admitted, so that there will be members to carry on after charter members graduate.

The members had plenty of fun at every meeting, and throughout every project. They showed their selling skill by peddling candy around the community, and then demonstrated their good citizenship by donating a large check to the Empty Stocking Fund and a generous pledge to World Service.

FROLICS AND FUN

1957 Whirlies have few victories, many stars

Though the GHS eleven got only three victories. the team had many individual players who stood out. They won games with Gastonia, Burlington, and High Point. They held the state champions. Salisbury, to only six points and had them apparently worried for awhile

This Salisbury game was actually the toughest of the season. According to Coach Jamieson, the Whirlies gave their very best performance against the bigger and more formidable Salisbury team. "The blocking and tackling was the best of the season," he said. The Whirlies lost to potent Durham and Raleigh teams by only one point each

The flu buy played havoc, sometimes causing as many as 19 players out of 35 to miss practice. In November, the High Point game had to be postponed for two weeks because each team had ten players on the sick list

Among the $\mathbb{W}$ hirlies many stood out. Expert blocker Dale Johnson was strong for GHS on defense until injured late in the season, In every game he was quick to break through the opposition's line and throw the ball carrier for a loss. Guard Buddy Rives, elected most valuable player, stood out with his effective blocking and tackling. He added needed weight to a light line.

Quarterback Larry Wachter led the olfense. He was noted as the most improved player from last year. For a little man he got through the line and was faky enough to give other teams plenty of trouble.

Bob Jamieson, Jr., led the Whirlie passing attack. Though only a sophomore, he showed power and perception in finding holes in the line. "Geronimo" Brewer was often successful on the other end of the passes. He pulled many tough ones.
"Dink" Black was the biggest player in the line. He and Bill Evans furnished the only real weight on an exceptionally light team. The Whirlies lost the services of a very valuable player when Roger Hobbs had to withdraw for an operation.

The 1957 junior varsity team vibrated with spirit and ability; the boys seemed to believe that "with determination and hustle" they could feel sure of a varsity post next fall. High scorers were Pete

The Whirlies had a well-balanced scoring attack and an effective tight zone defense. According to Coach Jamieson, they were full of surprises, for they had started the season without any apparent future. But as they gained experience they also gained momentum, winning games they weren't supposed to win, showing themselves a team that wouldn't quit.

There was no one star, but five boys played most of the way, with the help of a few substitutes. Dave Albaugh, Alton Brewer, Jim Eskridge, Edgar Sockwell, and Linwood Oates were the starting five. Larry Crayton, Bob Jamieson, Jr., Wellford Lineweaver, and Dave Spaulding saw the most action as substitutes. Albaugh was the team's high scorer, Oates stood out as a deadly shot, Brewer was the top rebounder. Eskridge and Sockwell were steady and dependable. Sockwell's ability to hit his free throws was sometimes referred to as the "Whirlies' secret weapon.

The 1957-58 team, though hampered by losing several strong wrestlers through graduation, finished the season with a record of 6 victories and 5 losses. The team started well, beating Climax, Virginia, $50-0$, and going on to win 5 of the first 6 matches.

Coached by Claude Manzi, the team compiled 221 points against 196 for 6 opponents in 11 matches. Standing out were heavyweight Bill Evans; defending state champion Dale Johnson, at 165 pounds; David Levy at 138 pounds; and Jerry Patterson, in the 103 pound bracket. Bill Hoyle, Allen Andrew, and Tommy Fidler also turned in many winning performances to help the Whirlies amass points.

Swimmers achieve honors

In March, 1957, Whirlie swimmers won their fifth straight North Carolina swimming championship. New records were set by Burwell, Dodson, and the relay team - Scruggs, Schiffman, Dodson, and Hubner. This victory came after the Whirlies had won their tenth straight dual meet and then had set 12 records out of 17 events in the second annual Eastern Indoor Invitational meet at WCUNC. There Burwell captured first place in three events, setting new marks in two. Dodson and Schiffman also scored victories.

As this IV'hirligig goes to press, the 1958 team has won two meets, lost two, tied one. Burwell won two events in the Atlanta meet, and in the Southern meet at Chapel Hill he set two meet records. Garrison and Ledford have won many second and third places for the Whirlies.

The 1957 Whirlie golf season opened with a victory over Burlington, followed by three more straight wins. The starting six included four lettermen - Murphy, Anderson, Glascock, and Sockwell - and Eskridge and Haraway. Anderson led the te:m consistently, with Murphy, Glascock and Sockwell showing steadily excellent style all season. They won seven of ten matches, came out second only to Asheville in the state tournament. All of these seasoned golfers except Anderson are back to make the 1958 season even more successful.

After four seasons without a defeat at the hands of another high school team, the 1957 Whirlie tennis players maintained the record, pushing the total victories to over fifty. Their only defeats were by potent Duke and UNC freshmen teams. Outstanding players were Phil Causey, James Spence, and Doug Orr. For the second time, Spence and Orr won the state doubles championship. As this book goes to press this year's prospects are still a mystery, for almost all of the 1957 team graduated last year.

The Whirlies easily won the Northern AAA division title; but they went into the $\mathrm{W}^{\prime}$ estern AAA championship series somewhat as underdogs, for they had the famed Geren Wrave of Gastonia (1) defeat. The Whtirlies won the opener by a narrow 8-7 margin, then lost the second. In the third game, though it was played on the Gastonia diamond, the Whirlies toppled the Green Wave by 7-1, to sew up the $W^{\prime}$ estern Conference.

It was in $W$ ilmington, where the Whirlies traveled for the state championship play-off, that they put up their toughest fight and won, if not the state title, the praise of sports writers as the "most spirited team to play in the finals in recent years." In two games they fought tenaciously against Wilmington to the last out, but lost each game in the final frame by a very close score.

As this IV"birligig goes to press, the 1958 team is beginning to shape up as potentially dangerous. Two good pitchers, Larry Crayton and Randy' Hartsell, and fielders Bill Godfrey and Spencer Gaylord look especially good.

Daily fun and chances to compete make phys ed

CALISTHENICS are 100 much fun to be taken very eriously.

For boys at Senior High the physical education program has plenty of action and some intensive study in health and safety. For credit there are classes that include a study of health, hygiene, first aid and even driver training. This study is carried on for nine weeks each semester, and the other nine weeks are taken up with group sports and games. These seasonal sports are tag football, soccer, volley ball, wrestling, basketball, tumbling, track, and softball. To round out the program there was a skills test the boys had to take. Other physical education classes, without credit, gave boys who enjoy exercise and team play plenty of opportunities for such fun.

I'R ICTICE builds skill in wrabbing rebounds.

classes popular with both boys and girls at GHS

In rain or sunshine girls were racing from the main building to their gym nearly every period of the day for physical education classes. Their activities changed as the seasons did. After volley ball and speedball in the fall, classes moved inside. Tumbling, gymnastics, and lots of patience resulted in fun and the acquisition of new skills. Square dancing, too, made this a welcome period after English or history. Before warm weather returned, instruction in health came. Then the girls dubiously began softball practice in the often muddy field beside the music building

Juniors and seniors who were really interested in sports headed the Girls' Athletic Council. This group sponsored an intramural basketball tournament. Six teams played every Monday in this highly competitive round-robin affair. With money raised by selling sweat shirts last year, the girls were able to buy new navy and white uniforms for the girls' varsity basketball team.

In basketball as well as speedball there were varsity teams, which competed against teams from other schools. The basketball team played a ten-game schedule and at press time had won their first four games. These teams and other members of the physical education program participated in two play days. The first, the AAA Play Day, was in High Point in April. Here the

Without this electric element games would be dull

The stadium and gymnasium roared with excited shouts of students and faculty this year, coached on by GHS' energetic cheerleaders, hopping around the edge of the court in their new blue crew neck sweaters and white felt skirts. Injecting their vim and vigor into the student body at games and even pep rallies, the cheerleaders did a good job of boosting the team's morale.

To heighten the fervor of shouting sports enthusiasts, blue and white shakers were made and distributed by Junior Civinettes. By the time a fan got three feet inside the door he was burdened down with an unwieldy shaker, a W'hirlie booster button, and a W'hirlie ribbon. Hundreds of such fans packed the stands at game after game, to heighten the fun and anticipation of each Whirlie sports event.

Youth Council plans fun

The Youth Council spent an energetic year planning lively open houses and directing other recreational activities. With Pat Basinger acting as adviser and Linda Cashwell as student chairman, the Council arranged successful open houses to entertain students after football and basketball games played at home. Two really outstanding events sponsored by the Council were the "sock hop," held as a climax to the Homecoming program, and the "Welcome, Holidays" get-together.

Besides providing entertaimment for their fellow students, a caravan of Council members dressed as goblins, ghosts, and witches enchanted the younger set with a Halloween Camival at Lake Daniel Park, In January junior and senior members of the group acted as hosts for the state Recreation Convention held in Greensboro at the O. Henry Hotel.

At a weiner roast newly elected sophomore Council members presented a riotous skit for the upper class members.

Sitting back in the old rockin' chair, Bellettes fondly recall the past school year. The "flappers" (alias sophomore initiates) made a gay and eyecatching picture at the football game and that uptown cafeteria in September.

A flood of other memories come - the joyous Christmas party, the fun-packed, noisy, sleepless slumber parties, the doughnut sale, the cold, rainy Saturday when they shivered in their boots on street corners as they collected for the March of Dimes, the weekly meetings when Sandra pleaded for back dues. All these experiences, remembered together, made their year of work and fun an immensely worthwhile and happy one.

BSC CLUB

The BSC members began their school year of social activities with a progressive dinner before the sophomore initiation. The ball of fun kept rolling as they made plans for their big dance. The members thoroughly enjoyed working together to raise money for this fabulous New Year's ball. The dance was held at Sedgefield Manor and made every member happy and proud. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hall, BSC advisers, were a much needed and welcomed help throughout the year, especially in connection with the dance. Mr. Hall helped plan the dance figures for the ball.

The BSC members helped the community by raising money for crippled children. This project gave them the opportunity to work together and be good community citizens too.

All members are looking forward with enthusiasm to their annual beach trip. This trip and a rollicking party will climax their activities for the year.

The close friendships that materialized during their club meetings and other get-togethers left their impression of the $1957-58$ school year a permanently happy one.

DDT CLUB

The DDT members began their eleventh year with the annual fun event that initiating sophomores always is. At the first football game of the year the sophs and "poor little Ann," dressed in baby outfits and holding teddy bears, were forced to crawl across the football field. Everyone will remember that first informal party afterward.

Club members collected money for the United Fund. The club organized entertainment for an eager audience at the Masonic Home, and the older people especially enjoyed the "jitterbuggin' " of Lynn and Roy! The DDT"s spent many chilly autumn Saturdays selling doughnuts and napkins in preparation for their dance, "Rhapsody in Blue." With their Plantation parties, beach trips and dizzy business meetings, the DDT's had a marvelous year!

ESA CLUB

"Will ya'll please be quiet!" was the most frequent plea of Jean, ESA's energetic president. But vivacious ESA'ers found it hard to stop chattering about all their exciting plans for the year - their progressive dinner, open houses, slumber parties, and of course, that sparkling highlight in the fall, the "Affair to Remember." After a rollicking initiation, which did have its serious moments, the ball of raising money began to roll. Community projects were not neglected, however. By singing for people at the Masonic Home and sponsoring an orphan, the club served their community. Of course, all are biding their time until the "Fab-U-Lous" summer beach trip. All in all, from Nancy's corny cuts to Rinda's bloodcurdling laugh, ESA'ers had a jolly year!

GWI CLUB

With the hectic activities starting off this school year, eleven apprehensive but thrilled sophomores were ushered in to join the sixteen other GWI members. The girls soon became a compatible unit, who enjoyed working and laughing together. In crisp October, girls and dates piled into a crowded wagon for an old-fashioned hay ride. Thanksgiving saw some high class entertaimment at the Plantation. The Christmas progressive dimner was tops!

Under the whipped cream was some good ol hard work that GIVI's did with gusto. They collected funds during the polio drive, made tray favors for a nursing home, and helped a needy family. GWI's will remember their warm friendships for years to come!

Les Soeurs Club

Begimning a very sociable year, Les Soeurs honored their sophomores - just recovering from a rugged initiation - at the Plantation. Then the club enjoyed a fish fry, another Plantation party and slumber parties - at which there was no slumber. Who could sleep with Gibby fuming about her car being taken by Sud, or with Mickie trying to teach the "beach" step, or with highly intellectual bridge games going on at all hours?

The sisters joyously welcomed 1958 at a progressive dinner. Then their spring dance, given at Sedgefield with the GWI's, was a happy success, as were the beach trips later.

Their activities were not all social, however, for they sent a Care package at Christmas and helped the other clubs solicit funds for the March of Dimes in January.

LJF CLUB

The LJF Club, latest addition to the ranks of girls' social clubs, was organized last fall with six members. They began their social activities with a Christmas party, celebrated with their dates at the Plantation Supper Club. To keep the holidays merry there was another party at Marie Talton's home. Each member invited guests and all exchanged gifts. Then as February drew nearer, the LJF girls began to look forward excitedly to therr "Hearts and Flowers" dance.

Long will LJF members remember their "crazy" Wednesday night club meetings, with Pat pleading for everyone to bring their dues, Peggy and Jan always arriving late, Helen and Kay and their corny cars, and everyone trying to do homework and jabbering about parties and boys as they ignored the messed-up living room.

SDC CLUB

After a hair-raising slumber party at Sandy's, following the club initiation, brand new SDC's no longer felt like step-children at a family reunion. Chemistry, Shakespeare, teachers, boy friends and good times offered plenty for comparing notes and strengthening ties.

Soon this babbling cross-section of GHS was singing Christmas carols and presenting gift records at Clapp's Rest Home and collecting in the rain for March of Dimes. Of course, such happy times as the yuletide Plantation party, the all-important dance in March, and the beach trips are not to be quickly forgotten. Neither are the honors many members garnered from their varied fields of interest, in school and out.

The Signet members began this year with a hilarious initiation of newly elected sophomores. Poor initiates had to appear at a football game in fiery red Hannels, topped with shortie nightgowns. They "bunny-hopped" around the stadium and gave a welcoming cheer on the Charlotte side. Other new members, taken into the club in January, were disappointed repeatedly when their initiation had to be postponed several times because of rain or snow.

The club's adviser, Miss Marie McLemmon, helped the Signets with many of their plans and projects. One helpful project the girls did was collecting for the March of Dimes on a rainy January Saturday.

The club planned their June beach trip with eager anticipation, and all club members agreed that it was a perfect end to a school year of wonderful, worthwhile activities.

SLC CLUB

SLC initiates resembled refugees from "Dogpatch" as they paraded in burlap sacks at the first football game! However, their apparel (along with that of the rest of the club) had changed remarkably in time for the Thanksgiving Plantation party.

Soon the serious business of raising money for the dance occupied everyone's mind. For weeks SLC girls trotted around town with arms filled with doughnuts or light bulbs for sale. Later SLC'ers joined other club members and donated their time to the worthy March of Dimes collection.

With Betsy armed with refreshments and Lymn hugging her telephone, the entire club had an exciting trip to the beach in May.

Venettes Club

Casting an eye in the Venette crystal ball we can see a list of events that happened in 1957. Po-o-or sophomores! To keep their city clean, soph initiates scrubbed the sidewalk in front of the Carolina Theater.

Then they remembered that the big dance would require financing; so vivacious Venettes tried their salesmanship with doughnuts and waxed paper - and successfully too! What fun they had when they invaded Donna Poe's house for a "crazy" slumber party! Then came the Coke" party, the Plantation party with their favorite dates, and the crowning touch - the wonderful dance at Sedgefield.

WST CLUB

WST began another frolicsome year when sophomores, costumed fetchingly as hat-check girls, were initiated at a September football game. This was followed by a "slumber" party, with great fun, no sleep. A mother-daughter tea was an enjoyable party early in the fall.

WST girls sold light bulbs by the case to pay for their grand dance. After weeks of nothing but light bulbs, an "Affair to Remember" made selling seem trivial when compared to the beautiful evening that club members and their dates enjoyed so completely. Another treasured highlight was the Plantation party, when WST's and dates braved the cold and snow for an exciting evening.

Amid plans for parties and money-making projects, the twenty-five members of the Syitt Club began the year full of enthusiasm. As the treasury began to dwindle, the sale of mapkins proved to be a quick way to replenish it.

Nor were useful projects neglected, for the club members had the School cheers printed for fellow fans to use at football games. They also helped a needy family in Raleigh and joined the other social clubs in the annual collection for the March of Dimes.

An honor came to the club when Hugh Blair, Syitt president, was elected president of the newly organized Inter-Club Council, of which the Syitt Club is a faithful member.

Senior High offers its students a great eltallenge. With their eager minds. groping through worn volnmes, they delve into the vastmess of the world's kiowledge and taste a little of its brilliance and depth. As they listen to theit favorite teacher, with chalk dust in hev graying hair, or pore over vexing problems, they realize that they may gain more than mere knowledge. They are being given the opportunity to reach far beyond nediocrity, to grain rewards that will be permanent and satisfying. In arcepting the challenge to climb, they call make dreams and ambitions come true: they can go on and on growing and gaining.

Rigorous training given IF'est Point "beasts" helps these freshmen boys grow in endurance and gain in achievement.

Mr. Smith's final year is busy and decisive

ODMINISTRATORS of Creenshore shools are Superintendent 13. L. Smith and Dírector of Instruction Philip J. Weaver.

For Administrators and Board of Education, 1957-58 demanded momentous decisions and duties. They brought about a partial integration of Greensboro schools. With architects plans and contracts they started the Southwest Junior High School moving toward reality. For Senior High they provided a very fine long-awaited track. For future school progress and efficiency they effected a successful bond issue, of which $$ 2,500$,000 is ear-marked for Greensboro schools.

The year 1958 will be remembered especially as Mr. B. L. Smith's final year as head of Greensboro schools. After 22 years as our dynamic and dedicated superintendent, he retires on June 30 amid praise and wide acclaim for his many accomplishments for Greensboro schools. As his regime ends, capable and farsighted Mr. Philip J. Weaver becomes Superintendent of Greensboro Public Schools.

GHS bustles and bulges

With seams bulging and every corner filled, Senior High entered its last year as Greensboro Public Schools' lone senior high school. But looking toward the opening of Page Senior High in 1958 made crowded conditions and consequent problems bearable. Mr. Routh's year began with problems to be solved - the school's first step in racial integration, the largest number yet of teachers and students to arrange a workable schedule for, many transfer students to place properly, too many students for auditorium programs.

Though he solved those problems, Mr. Routh never slowed his pace. There was a constant schedule of games and other school events. He even went with the band to Canada in April and with the seniors on the annual $W$ ashington trip.

FICLLTT CLIB OFFICERS - Presidrmt Jean Woot. Vice.Prevident Jeanne Meredith, and Sicrelary-Treasmer Sara Summirs - find a rare moment to relas during their buny day.

The teachers at Senior High function not only as individuals in classrooms and as advisers of activities but also at times as a group. The Faculty Club has officers, dues, and a set of rules providing for wedding gifts, flowers and cards to ill members, a party in the fall to welcome new teachers, and during commencement a tea honoring seniors.

This year the get-acquainted party for new faculty members was a dinner party at the Mayfair and an amusing program, which included Mr. Jamieson's delving into Loutise Smith's capacious purse for surprises and a show-stopping skit by several faculty men in hilarious costumes.

PTSA is a joining of forces to iron out problems

Officers and committee members of the Parent-Teacher-Student Association led their group through another year of friendly and productive cooperation between home and school. PTSA funds helped support the Youth Recreation Council, the IW birligig, and lunch-time recreation, College Day, and the Girl Scouts. Successful open houses and enjoyable dances were the results of the three PTSA groups working together. Senior's representative to Boys' State was sponsored by them; they atso presented bonds to an outstanding senior boy and girl on Awards Daty.

At the first meeting a school meal was served in the cafeteria. Then each parent followed his teen-ager's daily schedule at GHS. The effect was much the same as on a sophomore's first day at Senior - and included parental sympathy for their sons and daughters. Later programs included a panel discussion on preparing a student for college, a presentation by the Family Life classes, a talk by Mr. Holt McPherson, and a pionic in honor of the faculty.

ceeded to establish a place for themselves in the new life at Senior. Thus, the largest class ever to arrive at Greensboro Senior High School began to mold a chain to which academic and social activities would soon add many links.

First on the agenda for the tenth graders were the class elections. Hope, excitement, and disappointments mingled together with the final results to complete a successful campaign. Under capable leadership, the Sophomore Class was soon running smoothly.

The sophomores were now well-adjusted and held prominent positions in service and social clubs, musical organizations, councils, and publi-

Sophomores have set new record for class size

As the school year began, the "Silly Sophomores" quickly learned to take the teasings of their upper classmates in their stride. They overcame their handicaps and uncertainties, and quickly procation staffs. Sports were given a boost by the new additions as "Soph" boys and girls began to shine on the football, basketball, swimming, wrestling, track, golf, and temnis teams. Attention was again directed toward the sophomores as the spotlight centered on two of its girls in the "I Speak for Democracy" contest during the fall.

Once again the Sophomore Class diligently began to raise money to pay for their sophomore section in the annual $W^{\text {b }}$ hirligig. They pushed toward their goal of two hundred dollars with the enthusiasm always seen the first few weeks of school. Spirit suddenly zoomed upward as the sophomores eagerly purchased school pins, one of the links of a growing chain that was quickly making them an important part of Senior High. Soon the new additions began to greet their fellow classmates with, "Buy a pencil, please." The pencils contributed their own part to school support by reminding the fans of all the Whirlie basketball games. Completion of these projects was more than a task; it was one of the many ways an individual could help himself become a part of Greensboro Senior High School.

IT'S NO SALE as a sophomore urges a classmate to buy another "backethall pencil." Woney is used to pay for yearbook pages.

Projects and contests reveal many abilities

WATERS AND LANSBURGER were the firm and second place winner- in "I Sprak for Democracy" contest. Both art sophomore speech students.

members donating portions of their time, serving as marshals, or Higb Life or II'birligig staff members. They also helped the Council and Recreational committees carry out many projects.

Through projects and activities Juniors strive

September began another successful year; it was then that the Junior officers started a term of capable leadership. To pay for the Junior section in the $W^{\prime}$ hirligig. they undertook the task of selling "Old-Fashioned Golden Butter Bits." Their selling skill was not confined to candy, however; they were soon peddling stationery with the school monogram to their classmates - and making a tidy profit at it. Besides earning money for their class, Juniors showed plenty of school spirit. Examples of the handiwork of certain "green thumbs" could be seen in the bright spring flowers bursting through the soil here and there on the campus. They were determined to do what they could to make our campus more attractive. Juniors excelled also in the sports world. There could be found many willing and cager class

DECORATING the tahle in the front hall is junior project.

The Junior class boasts some "firsts." They were proud to have in their class an exchange student from Germany - Monika Engelken. In this age of inter-planetary exploration, the Junior class wanted to do their share; so no one was surprised when several Juniors of unusual scientific ability launched an ingenious rocket of their own!

Of course, Juniors received their class rings with pride. These gold bands were to stand as a reminder of the service and fun their class had contributed to CHS.

Another feather is added to the cap of "Good Service" by this year's Junior marshals. They served under the capable leadership of their chief Pete Banner and his assistants Sheila Sapero and Ronnie Jordan and their adviser Miss White. The girl marshals in their attractive white evening gowns, the boys in their distinctive blue suits gave expert assistance graciously at all school functions. Packing crowds into the auditorium for the various band, choir, orchestra, and dramatic programs would have been quite hectic without the able direction of Junior marshals.

Activities of Seniors are numerous and creative

As competent as they are cheerful, the senior class officers led their classmates through a full, worthwhile school year of activities. With a dynamic coach like Mrs. Newman, anything was possible.

the class gift to the school, and Class Day went smoothly. All this was recorded for posterity by Jan, secretary.

No wonder high school is remembered with such fond memories - and especially that unforgettable senior year! Minds have matured; and besides, there is that wonderful, exhausting, exciting whirl of parties and games. Cheering until you are hoarse is just another way of showing the love and appreciation that you feel toward GHS. Books, cramming, teachers, homework, football ribbons, informal get-togethers, dating, games, assembly programs, meetings, Thursday night performances in the auditorium - these are what seniors will remember of Greensboro Sentor High School.

SCHOOL SPIRIT'S greatest impetus can come from a dynamic and enthusiastic head cheerleader and a bonfire.

Months 月lew by for seniors wrapped up in their last busy year of school activities. Every happening became a cherished memory, and the knowledge that it was for the last time somehow made the most ordinary task seem important. No one will ever forget Dickens' "Christmas Carol," as portrayed on the school stage before the holidays The tedious rehearsals, committee searchings for costumes and the right make-up, and conferences to assure co-ordination on the big day were as nothing when the hearty applause reached the ears of the cast and directors backstage.

Even with the fun of extra-curricular activities, there were those who kept up the steady job of studying and more studying; but they did not go without reward. Seniors always led honor roll lists each six weeks; many class members wore around their necks the treasured charm given them by the National Honor Society in recognition of their efforts. But evidently there were those who felt that two years of work were enough; and while sophomores were just starting the long grind, the "goof-offs" stood back and relaxed. After all, if you did not study when you were a sophomore, when would the time come? Seniors cheer just a little bit louder; seniors laugh just a little bit harder: maybe seniors study just a little bit less.

AMID SENIORS who take seliool lightly a -ophomore work- loward a possible future honor.

I SENIOR in rewartled for hard work. service to Senior Hiyh.

Good-bye to GHS after three wonderful years

The frost began to melt on the trees around the campus, and the small pink buds of the Japanese cherry trees had just begun to unfurl. There was excitement in the air; Seniors had big plans for the spring. Bus loads of students took off for the Washington trip, which had been the topic of conversation for months. With little time to catch their breath, they presented for the last time the pageantry of May Day on the rolling lawn in front of the school. Seniors got their last taste of politics as they guided their younger classmates in the political intricacies of a convention and election. Then, as if in a dream, four years had come to an end. A little proud, a little sad, Seniors tried on their traveling clothes. Graduation was around the corner.

GENIORS TK) ON caps and gowns - a bit anxious, maybe?

MISED EMOTIONS of seniors on the way to clutch that long-coseted diploma must include nostalgia, pride and anticipation.

Commencement 1957

GRADUITION DIPLOMIS are being presented to solemn seniors by Mr. B. L. Smith, superintendent of Greensboro city schools.

It is May, 1957 - graduation month for 500 seniors. Soon after the solemn but happy Awards Day, which honored outstanding class members, the auditorium opened its doors to "The Greatest Show on Earth." A rather old and battered performer began the show by telling of his past under the Big Top. Before the hour was over, the stage was filled with costumed seniors in a circus version of traditional Class Day events. At the Woman's College Alumnae House, faculty members received seniors at the final tea. With "Moonlight and Roses" juniors entertained them at the prom. The gym, gaily bedecked for the formal occasion, was complete with a charming garden and spring flowers.

With immense pride seniors in gray robes and tasseled caps marched into the First Baptist
